THREE PLAYERS WHO FORM NUCLEUS OF LEE FOHL'S CLEVELAND INDIANS

FOHL LIKELY TO REMAIN AT HELM OF THE CLEVELANDERS

Owner Somers Satisfied With Early Showing of New Manager, Whose Job Appears Cinched.

Pitcher Walker Barely Escapes With Victory When He Is Pitted Against Walter Johnson.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

Lee Fohl, now acting as manager of the Cleveland Indians, will probably finish the season in that capacity. Charlie Somers, thankful at saving the salary of a high-priced manager, is satisfied with Fohl's work. There is absolutely no chance of Somers' signing Billy Evans, the umpire, for the job.

Billy Evans seized an opportunity to visit Cleveland and have a talk with Somers. He decided that the risk was too great and that his present berth was too good to jeopardize. Somers decided after his talk with Evans, that Fohl would suit him for the rest of the 1915 season, no matter what happened after that.

Speaking about managing a major league club, this same Lee Fohl came close to dropping a game yesterday when he sent Walker to the slab with a three-run lead over Walter Johnson. As things worked out, Cleveland won out, 5 to 4, but the handling of the Indians' hurlers is still open to criticism. Walker should never have been allowed to start the game against the Griffins. Morton, or some equally good twirler, should have been sent to the rubber with that three-run lead. As it was, Morton stopped the home boys and then was taken from the game to let a chess player appear for him. The Indians were more than lucky to win that second game of the series.

Walter Johnson, great pitcher that he is, had nothing in that opening frame. In addition he had the worst of support and the Indians romped ahead by three easy tallies. Leibold's error was followed by a bad case of misjudgment by Acosta on Turner, and both runners were on. Chapman died, but Leibold scored when McBride lost Wood's grounder. Morgan was a regular gate for Graney's grounder, and Turner scored. On Smith's death Wood tallied. Walker exploded in the third, the Griffins scoring four runs and going ahead. Johnson walked, and next three, Shanks, Foster, and Moeller, hit safely. Moeller getting a double. Milan and Williams died, but Morgan walked and worked a double steal with Moeller, the latter scoring. Henry's fly to Graney ended the inning. The Griffins were out in front.

The ninth frame saw the visitors win the game with two runs. Wambasaga doubled to left to start things, going up on O'Neill's death. Williams took Jacobson's drive and waited too long to get either the batsman at first or the runner at the plate. Jacobson's drive was followed by a double to Turner, single to right, scoring on Chapman's safety to center. In the pinch, Walter Johnson was unable to prevent the bingles that win games. Shanks took Wood's liner, but the game was all over then. Johnson had the poorest of support, but he was not in the best of shape for a hard game. While he is charged with the defeat, the blame is equally upon his support.

Stymie Jump Stroke Wins Reyburn Title

Rare Stroke Executed After Tuckerman Had Overcome a Lead and Won Seven Holes Turns Tide for New Champion.

By BRYAN MORSE.

A stymie jump stroke in golfing parlance corresponds to a similarly cleverly executed shot by an expert pool or billiard player when the breaks are bad. In golf when a player is stymied for the hole, his ball is away, it is his turn to make a stroke and his opponent's ball is directly in front of the hole. It is then that all the tricks of the game are called into play. A three-foot jump stymie stroke is one of the rarely successfully executed strokes in golf. To just such a stroke District Golf Champion William S. Reyburn, of Chevy Chase, today owes his victory over Walter B. Tuckerman.

Never was the psychology of golf better demonstrated than in yesterday's 36-hole championship match over the Chevy Chase course. Tuckerman and Reyburn, two of the best of the District players, after getting through the field of the best players in the city, came to the finals yesterday morning. Tuckerman won the title last year, and was expected to come through a victor over his less experienced opponent. The wisecracker who waited until the afternoon round were completely upset when it was known that Reyburn's steadiness and consistent putting had enabled him to lead Tuckerman over the first 18 holes by 3 up. The day before Tuckerman had come to the thirteenth hole three down with Sam Laidell, had halved a hole and taken four straight and the match and so with eighteen holes to go Reyburn's lead was not considered too great a handicap for the former title holder.

At the start of the afternoon round Reyburn got a three on the first hole making the match four up. The second hole was halved and the third hole also. Reyburn topped his drive on the fourth tee, went into the ditch and on short recovery was about to play his third stroke with a brassie. A careless young woman, more intent upon her game, drove off behind Reyburn and sent her ball rolling by. Reyburn got a fine brassie, but lost the hole. Coming back to the fifth Reyburn's drive was poor, going into the rough.

As he was about to play the careless young woman tripped across the sward, held up the match, apologized, gave him a handkerchief and into the championship match. Reyburn's next stroke was topped, the ball rolled into a cedar tree and he was forced to pick up, conceding the hole to Tuckerman. This loss of two straight holes proved disastrous, for Tuckerman began to play golf under par and at the turn, with seven straight holes won by faultless golf, had Reyburn three down.

It was at this juncture that Morven Thompson, forgetting his dignity and high office, gave up all prospect for a Reyburn win and prostrated himself groaning with misery. To lose seven straight holes and have a four up advantage turned to a three down defeat with but eight holes to play with an opponent like Walter Tuckerman, was enough to put any supporter in the dumps.

Here, however, was where Reyburn's jump stymie shot completely upset the odds, gave him needed confidence and finally broke Tuckerman's stride. The third hole was halved. Tuckerman's card was counted and it was found that he had played in two strokes under par and was going well enough to predict that the match would go but thirty-one or thirty-two holes at the most.

On the eleventh hole Tuckerman's maulie off the tee went on the edge of the green, a kick in helping somewhat. Reyburn was hole high and when Tuckerman's stroke was a foot short Reyburn's try for a two led him to a dead stymie below the hole. Selecting a maulie the jump stroke was successfully consummated over Tuckerman's ball and the hole was halved.

Tuckerman's wood shots fell off after that and Reyburn's great recovery and approach on the twelfth gave him the hole. Reyburn won the thirteenth, took the fourteenth when Tuckerman bunk-

TITLE EVENTS GET NOTICE TOMORROW

Columbia Country Club Stages Last Matches in Middle States Championships.

More championship challenge rounds in tennis are to be offered for the following of the game tomorrow at Columbia Country Club, where the Middle States title events are being run off, as Miss Elizabeth Bryan, challenger, is due to meet Miss Eva Baker for the title. The finals of the men's doubles and other events not regularly listed for this title will be run off.

Spencer Gordon's win over J. Ballard Moore in yesterday's final in the men's singles was generally looked for. Few expected Moore to put up such a fight and the match went to five sets in Gordon's favor by 4-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, and 6-4.

Miss Bryan won her right to meet Miss Baker in defeating Miss Doyle by 6-3 and 6-2.

Men's doubles—Final: Gordon and Moore vs. Gore and Bethel, at 5 o'clock. Women's singles—Final: Miss Baker (title holder) vs. Miss Bryan, at 3:30 o'clock.

Women's consolation—Final: Mrs. Baker vs. Mrs. Moore, at 3:30 o'clock. Mixed doubles—Final: Miss Baker and Moore vs. Mrs. Davis and Koneville. (Miss Doyle and Leach drew a bye).

Men's consolation—Second round: Karkick vs. Holtzman; McLachlen vs. Reynolds. Semifinal: Herrick vs. Dorst. Winner of Karkick-Holtzman match vs. winner of McLachlen-Reynolds match. Winner of this match to meet winner of Herrick-Dorst match in final.

Walter Travis Defeats Anderson for Big Honor

RYE, N. Y., June 5.—Age and experience triumphed over youth on the links of the Apawamis Club yesterday, when Walter J. Travis, the veteran Garden City golfer, captured the Metropolitan City championship. Travis won his title by defeating John G. Anderson, of Silver Lake, in a match play contest.

Both golfers were distinctly off their stride in the morning. The veteran couldn't get going while Anderson flashed some good playing only to counteract it with a slump immediately after. In the afternoon both had steadied down and the match was a hard-fought all the way. Travis finished with a beautiful bit of work, scoring three on the final hole, while Anderson took five on the hole.

Whole Team of Cobbs Assails Helpless Yanks

NEW YORK, June 6.—The Yankees were ground under the iron heel of the Detroit oppressor again yesterday. The score was 11 to 2. As long as Ty Cobb persists in showing off before the city folks there isn't much hope, and when two or three others on the Detroit team play as well as Cobb does there are forces in operation which seldom fail to overwhelm whatever is opposed to them.

Score by innings:
Tigers..... 000 200 045—11 3 0
Yankees..... 000 000 002— 2 5 3
Batteries—Dauks and McKee; Fisher, Brown and Sweeney.

Shuts Out Dodgers.

PITTSBURGH, June 6.—Mamaux was daddy of the Brooklyn Dodgers here yesterday, just as he had been in Brooklyn a few days ago, and shut them out by a score of 11 to 0. He completely reversed the experiences of yesterday, when the Buccaneros looked like school boys in the hands of Robinson's pennant chasers, and they didn't have and the match was a hard-fought all the way. Travis finished with a beautiful bit of work, scoring three on the final hole, while Anderson took five on the hole.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY ENDS BASEBALL YEAR

Hobbs, Army Fielder, Finishes Brilliant Career Against Washington Collegians.

WEST POINT, June 6.—Catholic University, of Washington, closed its baseball season here yesterday, when its team lost to Army by 1 to 6. Hobbs, demon slugger of the Army team, who has been doing spectacular things in almost every branch of sport since his entrance at West Point four years ago, distinguished himself in this game. His triple to deep center in the second started the cadets on their scoring bee and in the eighth, after two were down, Hobbs strode to the bat for the last time before he is graduated next Saturday and slammed one of Fahey's fast ones over Croker's head in far off right field. It was good for the circuit.
